

Jefferson County's HOME NEWSPAPER

Vol. 43 No. 51

40 YEARS AGO

"He sang every night as he went to bed.
"Let us be happy here below;
The living should live, though the dead be dead."
Said the jolly old pedagogue
long ago."

Indiana, our "just-across-the-river" state, was, apparently, so ahead of Kentucky in the development of public schools that J. B. McFerran, presumably at his own expense, had taken a committee from Jefferson County to look into the consolidated school question by seeing with their own eyes the buildings and equipment of such schools in Muncie, Franklin, Salem, and surrounding communities. C. B. Miller and J. P. Shively were members of the committee and they were not only favorably impressed but they made a favorable report, commending the consolidated school system. Likewise, they met and were entertained by Robert J. Aley, Indiana State superintendent of schools. It was suggested that others interested in forward education go to Indiana "to convince themselves."

Farmers of Jefferson County were holding meetings to organize an association and there would be speaking on the subject in Jeffersontown on a program to be presented at the big convention of farmers in St. Louis "next week," when, among others to be heard would be President of the United States William Howard Taft, William Jennings Bryan, Mr. Barret, president of the Farmers' Union, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, James J. Hill, the great railroad "trustbuster" of the Great Northern.

Boys' Clubs for car raising were advocated by O. B. Martin, Department of Agriculture of Washington, D. C., and Florence W. Moreman had sent a letter to The Jeffersonian commending the move. The improvement of seed corn would be an extension in the boys' demonstration work.

The body of J. T. S. Johns, Prestonia, was found floating on the surface waters of the Ohio River, several miles south of New Albany, after he had left home for a few hours' business trip to the city and had been missing several days. A heavy scalp wound on the back of the head made it appear he had been attacked and killed. There was no other clew. His age was 72 and he was "survived by three grown children."

"Widowers can't flourish in Worthington," declares "A.B.C." (Mrs. Simcoe) writing from St. Matthews. "We've got a new Mrs. Babbit!" And, Mr. Babbit has made such an excellent choice—both, so well suited in age, disposition, and seem so happy. Every widower in Worthington is now on his best row of wives, and we wives smiled significantly, knowing that if we climbed "the ladder stairs" there would be a "second edition" in a few months. Well, there is one comfort about the widower's life, namely—divorce—very popular in other places, but there would be a flag raising and appropriate exercises at the Jeffersontown School, May 1.

30 YEARS AGO

The paper congratulated the Jefferson County Farm Bureau for requiring all its officers to be members and capable for the service to be performed. This was set forth in the organization's new constitution.

"How May We Cultivate Truthfulness?" was the subject of a discussion before the Beulah Christian Endeavor Society, May 1, 1920, by Gilbert Bohannan. Earl Bates was leader with "subject," "Cultivate High Ideals." There was an address by Edwin Rock, president of the Louisville C. E. Union.

Members of St. Dennis' Church would give a social and supper at the Cane Run Road Improvement Club, May 4, for the benefit of the church.

The Jeffersonian was printing two full columns of Farm Bureau news along with boosting other activities of the Jefferson County farmers. "The farmers' federation promise to be an instrument of great service, not only to the farmer themselves but to all," the paper said editorially.

Sewing machines, advertised, could be bought for "from $9.50." Spaulding W. T. Carruthers, Thursday evening. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Kaufman, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Kuntz, Misses Edna Ruth, and Carol Jean Kaufman, and Martha Alice Kuntz.

Three of the Porter children, whose names we failed to get.

The Henry Olges sale Saturday was a grand success. Things sold well according to report. Mrs. Ollie Thorne was not feeling so well Sunday. We are anxious to hear and hope the report will be better next time.

Miss Betty Brown spent the week end in Spencer with the senior class of Fern Creek High School, who are graduating May 15 at Halleck Hall, Louisville.

We were wondering what we would have for supper Saturday and then it happened. Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Kuntz brought a surprise chicken supper and did we enjoy it. Thanks a million.

At last report Miss Susie Parrish was quite ill. Dr. Slucher was in attendance.

Mrs. Thorton was dinner guest of Mrs. Pallie Bruns, Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Smith and Mrs. Elia Edinger, of Louisville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Scott and Mrs. Mary Lloyd Scott, Thursday evening.

Mrs. Carrie Belle Smith and Mr. Harold Smith were delightfully entertained at 6 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. C. Smith, Sunday in Louisville.

Mrs. Nally, of Louisville, is guest of Mrs. Mary Hayes and son.

Honor to whom honor is due, Mrs. Thorton was a slight bit understanding over the $200 check received by Mrs. Thorton, as she understood from John Bourne, however, it proved to be from just one heir, Mr. Will Martin, son of the late Mr. J. C. Smith.

Misses Mary Lee and Faye Kaufman were two seniors from Fern Creek High School who enjoyed the week-end trip to Chicago.

The studies of Pennsylvania Run Church have set June 17 for their annual fish fry. Watch for their announcement in Amusement Guide.

Thirty per cent of the tests were very low in phosphate; 24 per cent, low; 17 per cent medium; 18 per cent, high, and 16 per cent, very high.

Potash tests showed 32 per cent very low; 28 per cent, low; 16 percent, medium; 18 per cent high, and 10 per cent, very high. These percentages, Brown said, show why farmers should have their soils tested.

Enjoy your rhubarb while it's at its freshest best. Fresh crisp rhubarb is coming to market... prime for adding color and zest to your spring menus.

Rhubarb's good when the stalks are fairly thick, fresh and crisp, not wilted or flabby. Large leaves, if they have been left on, indicate older stalks, of poorer flavor than young stalks.

To take care of rhubarb—if not to be used at once, wrap in damp cloth or aluminum foil and keep in the refrigerator. If the rhubarb has become wilted, it may be refreshed by placing in fruit or vegetable tray of the refrigerator to restore the crispness.

By the way—rhubarb is not usually sold. One pound will make about two cups of the season.

Freeze some for the future. Rhubarb is relatively short, so you may want to prepare some for freezing. Only the early crop of rhubarb should be used for freezing because of its superior quality. The young tender stalks have better flavor, more color, and preferred texture.

To freeze—according to the directions in the University of Kentucky circular on Storing Foods in Freezer Lockers, follow these steps: Wash stalks, trim the stalks into one-inch pieces. Do not peel. Pack without sugar if you prefer, or if sugar is used, add 1/4 cup of sugar to each cup of sugar. Stir the rhubarb with the sugar until it is well coated. Pack in containers for freezing. If syrup is preferred, make the syrup using three cups sugar to 4 cups water. Mix together and heat until all sugar is dissolved. Allow to cool before covering the rhubarb. Seal freezer cartons and freeze as soon as possible.

For more freezing information, write to Room 437 Federal Building, Louisville, for the Kentucky Circular No. 388.

THE MELON CROPS

The melon crops include the cucumber, squash, cantaloupe, and watermelon. As these are "warm" crops, their planting time is not until the soil has become warm, usually between May 1 and May 15.

The ideal soil is sandy loam, as it warms up readily and permits the "accidents" of weathering through, but any soil in good tilth and with plenty of humus will do. The best time to plant is "skip" of at least one year between planting all members of a group.

The time-honored method of making hills with manure or commercial fertilizer does very well as far as it goes, but the best beyond should be fertile topsoil, the roots of all these crops range as wide as the topsoil. The hills should not be high, merely an inch or so, permitting the rain water to run off and not cake the soil.

Six to eight seeds should be sown together (to help each other up), and covered 1/2 inch, patted lightly. The distance between hills should be for cucumbers and bush squashes, three feet; for running squashes and cantaloupes, five feet; for cucumbers, six feet; and for watermelons, eight to ten feet.

After the striped cucumber beetle has taken its toll, final thinning should be done to two plants in a hill, except for watermelons, one plant. The excess plants should be cut off, not pulled.

For picking and picking, Long Green cucumber is best. Or, specifically for slicing, use the straight necked cucumber. The Illinois or Chicago. While Scallop is the bush squash, but the running sort, Golden Crookneck or Straightneck have more flavor and quality. Green Striped is the cucumber, and always new seed should be used to avoid the odd shapes and dry meanness that result from pumpkins which have been crossed with cucumbers. As for cantaloupes, Fordhook (Netted Gem) is excellent, despite its lack of the "diamond" shape. It combines both quality and golden color. The standard watermelon is the Kleckley, or Stone Mountain, where there is no suspicion of wilt in the soil, or the Black Sea may be used to safe.

Suggest Methods To Reduce Dairy Work

Dairymen could reduce by half the time and work required in operating their dairies if they would plan their work better and make changes in buildings and equipment, says the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky.

Using top methods, the college's economists found that ordinary methods used in dairies, feeding, milking, cleaning, washing utensils and carrying for milk required 120 to 150 man-hours a cow a year. Then they worked out a system whereby this time was reduced to 60 to 70 hours.

One plan included letting cows run in "rest sheds," instead of holding them in stanchions. Milking is done in a "walk-through" milking room. The cows eat their grain while being milked, and receive roughage and silage in their loafing and sleeping quarters. While there are several kinds of milking arrangements, one that handles four cows abreast is recommended.

Use of an advocate of the rest shed or loafing area is ideal, over stanchions, is that the same loafing space can be used for sheep and beef cattle as well as for milk cows, where the farmer wishes to raise a variety of livestock.

Building costs can be reduced by attaching the milking room to the milking area to the tobacco barn.

The college's investigators found it possible to reduce the time and work required in dairies in all operations of a dairy. In some instances, walking could be reduced from 20 miles a cow a year to 15 miles or even less, they declared.

Broilers Weigh 3 Pounds When 9 Weeks Old

At 5 weeks, the birds averaged 1.25 pounds and at 9 weeks 3.01 pounds and at 11 weeks, when they were marketed, averaged slightly more than 3 pounds at 9 weeks. On one 263 pounds, feed per pound of meat, it was announced recently.

Foot and Mouth Disease

The campaign in Mexico against the foot and mouth disease seems to be a remarkable success, with 50,000,000 inoculations at a cost of $140,000,000. Joint U.S.-Mexican Commission reports that not a single case has shown up in Mexican cattle herds. However, the last cattle inoculated will be kept under observation to see whether the disease has been completely wiped out or only temporarily halted.

Kentucky Truck Crop News

According to B.A.E., the unfavorable growing conditions experienced throughout most of April, with sudden freezes, has retarded the cabbage crop, causing it to be late and requiring considerable care. Little or no damage is experienced for potatoes as they were not up when the freezes occurred. However, there has been considerable damage to strawberries, especially the early maturing Blakemore. Later varieties, like the Ananas, are in better shape.

Sweet Corn Up

Those first plantings of Golden Sweet Corn are now coming up with a bang. Henry Huffman and other early growers in the Cane Run Road area have again gotten a head start with their sweet and early maturing corn crop. J. W. Fegenbush and A. Buechel are in the Buechel and Maple Grove communities also have Yellow Hybrid Sweet Corn coming up. These growers and others, who will plant at once now, will market their corn in co-operation with the preference study to be conducted in a number of large stores in the Louisville area this July. This will be a repeat on a larger scale of a similar market study conducted in 1949.

New Kitchen 1/2
Miles of Walking

How a U-shaped kitchen saves 45 miles of walking a year is told by Mrs. George C. Wheat. In a letter to Elizabeth A. Word, home demonstration agent in Warren County, here is a part of her story about the remodeling of her home.

"A concrete block foundation under the entire house has added much in comfort and appearance, and the concrete front porch and utility room at the back, opening into the kitchen, in place of the old back porch, are big improvements, too. In Acres at the end of the kitchen, a new freezer, a table for cutting up meat and preparing food for freezer. The new kitchen sink will be installed there and connected to both hot and cold water. New outside door is a closet for outdoor wraps and overcoats."

"We moved the back kitchen door to give room for an unbroken work center, forming a U-type kitchen. At the extreme right is the refrigerator, next is a mixing center with flour bin below and cabinets above for articles used in food preparation. Next is a 32-inch double sink with cabinets above and below. Across the end of the kitchen is an 18-inch counter in front of a window where I can sit to prepare food. The stove faces the driveway and a beautiful view across the pasture to the woods. The stove faces the driveway and a beautiful view across the pasture to the woods. Bees to Buzz on TV

Friday night, 9:15 p.m. (daylight saving time), on WAVE-TV, "The Market Basket," our Jefferson County Extension Office will present a program on "The Bee and His Honey."

Fred O. Miller, of the Beekeepers Association, W. B. Buechel, a large commercial beekeeper, Mrs. Miriam J. Kelley, and H. C. Brown will discuss the value of bees as producers of honey and their great value as pollinators of many fruits, vegetables and other farm crops. Tune in, you won't get stale.
